STEPS TO VIRTUAL INTERVIEW SUCCESS DURING COVID-19

Virtual self-presentation

MIND YOUR FACIAL EXPRESSIONS

During the time of COVID-19, virtual interviews are becoming more common. An individual's facial expression during an interview is often a focal point for employers. This can influence their perception of the interviewee

FIRST IMPRESSIONS ARE MADE QUICKLY

With just a small number of specific questions, an employer is often able to gauge the type of employee that an interviewee is. Take time to think questions through, have a process, and do not be afraid to ask for clarification.

HOW DO YOU WANT TO BE PERCEIVED?

An individual being aware of the attitude and demeanor that they are presenting is an important skill during virtual interviews. Adjusting and enhancing the traits that someone wishes for others to perceive can influence an interviewer's initial thoughts and opinions of a person.

OVERCOMING CHALLENGES AND BARRIERS

With virtual interviewing, it is important to understand that there is a possibility of there being internet setbacks, misinterpretation, and connection issues. Taking the time to think of alternate ways to approach these situations can prove to be a valuable skill during the time of COVID-19.
